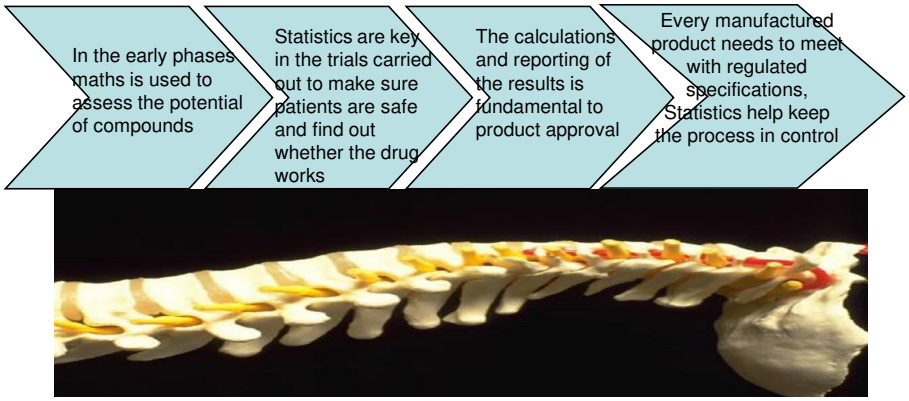
Have you ever wondered who makes medicine? Or who puts the mint in toothpaste?

Have you ever asked yourself where the medications like Paracetamol or Asprin come from? And did you ever think Maths and Statistics played a huge role in them being available in the first place??

Where do Maths and Statistics come into it?

Believe it or not, they go hand in hand with science and technology and form the back bone of medicine development



www.psiweb.org

Do you want to be part of this exciting environment?

If you like maths at school then you will definitely enjoy learning the more advanced techniques that make all this possible. There are endless options for you if you choose a career in Statistics… So go on - The pharmaceutical industry is waiting for you!